

Dear FCC. I would like to briefly express my desire that the LPFM service that is under introduction not be used to displace longstanding national services such as the K-Love service. It is one of very few radio stations that provide the family oriented programming that I listen to the majority of the time that I listen to radio anymore.

The purpose for this is that the standard stations of today do not care about the family oriented programming structure. With K-Love, there is no need for the 7 second delay.

General programming of today falls very short on providing quality time, especially with the advertising content that permeates the air waves. If K-Love were to be discontinued, there would be a strong void of worthwhile alternatives, leading me to just turn it off. K-Love not only provides quality inspiring music, it also provides a resource for information, encouragement and direction. Thank you for your interest in comments in this area. I hope that you will find the ideas included valid. Joseph A. Coleman
